MATTHEW SWAMPS
N. CAROLINA BEFORE
TURNING OUT TO SEA

Emergency crews in boats rescued hundreds of people from floodwaters and plucked others from rooftops by helicopter in North Carolina after former Hurricane Matthew flooded much of the Southeast before weakening on Sunday and turning out to sea. Matthew, the most powerful Atlantic storm since 2007, was downgraded to a post-tropical cyclone on Sunday after its rampage through the Caribbean killed nearly 900 people in Haiti and at least 16 people in the United States. Haiti also has suffered from outbreaks of cholera and about 61,500 displaced people were in shelters, officials said. In the United States, more than 2 million homes and businesses had lost power. Officials said many coastal and inland communities were still under water, either from coastal storm surge or overrun rivers and creeks. REUTERS

SUSPECT ARRESTED IN FATAL SHOOTING OF TWO
CALIF. POLICE OFFICERS

Police arrested a suspect early on Sunday in the fatal shooting of two officers and the wounding of a third in Palm Springs, California, after an hours-long standoff that began with a report of a family dispute. John Felix, 26, was taken into custody just after midnight at the home in Palm Springs where the officers were shot on Saturday afternoon. Four officers came under fire soon after arriving at the residence in response to a call from a woman who said her son was causing a disturbance, police said. Two police officers, Jose Vega, a 35-year veteran, and Lesley Zerebny, 27, were killed, and another officer, who authorities declined to identify, suffered nonlife-threatening injuries. Felix was treated at a hospital after his arrest. He will be booked on two counts of murder, according to a police press release. REUTERS

MUSK SAYS HE WON'T HAVE TO RAISE FUNDS
IN FOURTH QUARTER

Tesla Motors CEO Elon Musk said the company would not need to raise equity or corporate debt in the fourth quarter for its planned acquisition of SolarCity Corp., contradicting a filing the company made with regulators last week. Asked on Twitter whether the company would raise funds in first quarter of 2017, Musk tweeted, "Probably not then either." A Tesla spokeswoman did not immediately reply to a request for comment on Sunday. In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission on Friday, Tesla said it "is currently planning to raise additional funds by the end of this year, including through potential equity or debt offerings, subject to market conditions and recognizing that Tesla cannot be certain that additional funds would be available to it on favorable terms or at all." REUTERS

Hurricane Matthew did significant-to-major damage from Florida to Virginia, but it did not deliver the extreme blow that many feared.

Haiti was in the crosshairs and received a devastating strike with over 400 fatalities.

Most of the damage along the Florida coastline from Palm Beach and points north, especially the northeastern coast of Florida, was from storm surge — flooding shore towns, significantly damaging structures, toppling trees and causing widespread power outages.

Luckily, the most powerful of the hurricane winds, which exceeded 100 mph, remained about 40-70 miles off shore, sparing Florida a direct hit.

North Carolina had severe flooding, the worst since Hurricane Floyd in 1999. Georgia and South Carolina saw major storm surges of more than 9 feet, causing major damage along well-populated coastal towns, especially Charleston and Myrtle Beach.

The Northeast was spared for the most part, except for a rotten weekend with periods of rain, strong winds along the southern New Jersey coast and some tidal flooding.

The chilly, wet weekend stretched all the way up the East Coast through southern New

Debate devolves into carnival of personal attacks

As expected, Donald Trump was forced to deflect criticism of the recently released video of his vulgar remarks about women.

AMANDA MIKELBERG
@MetroNewYork
amanda.mikelberg@metro.us

No hand shaking. No holding back.

The opening moments of the second presidential debate shaped up to be the most vicious, most accusatory, and as intensely personal of the entire campaign year. Any talk of policy was shoved aside by personal attacks.

Moderator Anderson Cooper asked Trump point blank do you realize that you admitted to, and bragged about, committing sexual assault. Trump dismissed his remarks and comportment as “locker room talk,” and that “nobody has more respect for women than me,” while trying to turn the conversation back to our borders and making American safe again.

When Cooper followed-up, Trump wasted no time launching into his attack on Bill Clinton, calling him a rapist, alluding to his impeachment, and making the claim that he had his license to practice law revoked.

Clinton followed up by saying that though Trump will say the tape does not represent who he is – that it represents “exactly who he is. We have seen him insult women. We have seen him rate women on their appearance.” Clinton offered a list of Trump insults, including embarrassing women on TV and twitter, denigrating a former Miss Universe, targeting immigrants, African Americans, Latinos, Muslims, POWs and disabled people.

The debate eventually migrated into policy issues. Though immigration and Isis emerged as topics, Cooper raised the question of Trump’s taxes.

For the first time in the election, Cooper began, taxes became a top issue following The New York Times expose suggesting Trump used a $916 million business loss to avoid paying federal taxes for 18 years.

Cooper directly asked Trump whether he used a tax loophole.

“Of course I did,” Trump admitted. He then went on to say “I understand the tax code better than anyone who has ever run for president...I pay tremendous numbers of taxes. But I used it. And so did Warren Buffet, so did George Soros. I have a write off, I have depreciation. I love depreciation.”

Clinton often challenged the truth of Trump’s assertions and at one point said that he lives in an “alternative reality.”

Trump hounded Clinton on the email scandal, adding that if elected he would appoint a special prosecutor to investigate her. “You would be in jail,” he remarked.

Trump asserted that he’s an expert on Isis. He said he knows more about Isis than U.S. generals, and he also threw his running mate Mike Pence under the bus, saying that “he and I haven’t spoken and I disagree. I disagree.”

Trump drove forward his position on mistrust of immigrants, especially from Syria. “I don’t want to have...hundreds of thousands of people coming in from Syria,” he said. “I’m going to force them back into their country.”

“Muslims have to report the problems when they see them... If they don’t do that, it’s a very difficult situation,” he said.

In response to an audience question, Clinton denigrated Trump’s qualifications for office.

“I’ve never questioned a Republican nominee’s fitness to serve. Donald Trump is different,” she said.

She then coined a line that might carry her position on school bullying past the election threshold. Children now have “a lot of fear,” and that “teachers and parents are calling it ‘the Trump effect.’”

Trump removed hope for a dignified debate with a strange, staged news conference an hour before he headed to the debate stage. The Republican nominee sat at a table flanked by four women supporters, one of whom accused Bill Clinton of rape. Trump was apparently attempting to draw a contrast between the former president’s behavior and Trump’s vulgar remarks on the leaked Access Hollywood video.

On Sunday morning, Trump tweeted a video from right-wing outlet Breitbart News of Bill Clinton accuser Juanita Broderick, who was among the women he flew in for the news conference, alleging that the former president had raped her over 30 years ago. The Trump camp hinted that their strategy would be to highlight indiscretions from Bill Clinton’s past, potentially bringing up a rape allegation and making Hillary Clinton answer for her husband’s behavior and her complacency.

Trump might have been better off practicing policy questions, said elections scholar Michael Miller, who teaches political science at Barnard and Columbia University, as town-hall debates are typically more policy-centric.

Trump’s surprise tactic could not succeed in rattling his prepared opponent, nor was it appropriate to the venue of the debate, Miller said.

“I am certain that Clinton has been ready and had prepared several lines of defense on that threat,” he told Metro.

Miller said that the effect of Trump’s actions leading up to and at the debate will have to accomplish one thing if he is to win in the general election: usher women voters into his court, specifically Republican women.

“He needs upwards of 90 percent of Republican women,” Miller said, adding that going in to the debate Trump’s support among Republican women hovered in the low 30-percent range.

“The problem is that he has a ceiling,” he said. “He’s got about 40 percent of the electorate, but he’s always had trouble building past his initial level of support.”

The political stunt ahead of the debate drew a backlash.

House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi called him a “grotesque clown,” following the brief news conference, and remarked at how disturbing it is that this man can envision himself as President of the United States.

On Saturday and Sunday morning the news media covered a parade of Republican officials withdrawing support from Trump. Some were calling on him to step down as the nominee and either have his running mate Mike Pence top the ticket or choose a new nominee. Even Trump’s closest allies said they couldn’t condone his remarks—though they did champion his apology.

Defenders appearing on TV and social media threw around the excuse that Trump’s talk is locker room de rigueur.

“So the #NeverTrump’s really think Trump should step down over some private macho locker room talk 11 years ago? Ridiculous,” tweeted conservative radio show host Bill Mitchell.

Actor Scott Baio, who is a vocal Trump supporter, suggested he be given a pass for his lewd comments because he was a Democrat 11 years ago.

Just a few days ago, the biggest issue on the table and the one sure to be a topic at the town hall debate was Trump’s exposed $900 million business losses and potential tax avoidance. It was broached at the VP debate, but in the warm-ups to Sunday’s big event it was barely mentioned.

Other explosive revelations weren’t confirmed in time to be in the debate talking points but might surface and quake the Trump camp again. TV show insiders say the video of Trump that surfaced last week is only one among many from The Apprentice, and that he said “much worse” things in footage contract-protected and have a “leak fee” of $5 million.

“As a producer on seasons 1 & 2 of #theapprentice I assure you: when it comes to the #trumptapes there are far worse. #justthebeginning,” tweeted Bill Pruitt.

It would make sense that recriminating cuts from The Apprentice would be strictly guarded because the show’s creator Mark Burnett is a Trump supporter and friend—a friend who could be sheltering a big bombshell that would turn attention back to the racist undertones of Trump’s campaign: usage of the “N” word.

“I don’t have the tapes. I’ve signed a Burnett contract & know leak fee is 5 mill. Hearing from producers/crew N word is the “much worse,” tweeted Chris Nee.

“We don’t have the legal right to give out the footage from that show,” the NBC spokeswoman said confirmed.

One thing Trump won’t be able to use tonight to freshen up his act is a Tic Tac. The mints Trump referenced in the Billy Bush footage recently tweeted: “Tic Tac respects all women. We find the recent statements and behavior completely inappropriate and unacceptable.”

Lack of affordable housing bad for your health, study says

The New York Academy of Medicine found that a variety of health problems can be linked to a lack of affordable housing.

ALAN KRAWITZ
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

GETTY IMAGES

On the heels of continuing battles over the placement of homeless shelters in the city, a new report says that the health of city residents, especially in low-income and urban areas, can be harmed by the rapid disappearance of affordable housing, as well as the prevalence of substandard housing.

In its recent report focusing on East Harlem, one of the poorest neighborhoods in the city, The New York Academy of Medicine (NYAM) said that when a "community loses affordable housing — especially in a dense, expensive urban area — residents experience displacement, increased homelessness and other stresses that lead to poor health outcomes."

Some of those poor health issues include high rates of hypertension, diabetes, asthma, infant mortality, drug addiction and mental health issues.

NYAM's report also noted that East Harlem has lost nearly 2,000 units of affordable housing since 2011 and is estimated to lose more than 6,000 over the next 10 years.

In addition, the academy noted that East Harlem is losing about 280 rent-controlled or rent-stabilized units per year while more than half of the neighborhood's population has varying levels of difficulty — from moderate to severe — paying current rents.

As such, the report also supports a key part of Mayor Bill de Blasio's Affordable Housing Plan by identifying the plan's mandatory inclusionary housing requirement as central to maintaining a stable, health-supporting environment in urban communities.

"Our East Harlem Health Impact Assessment recommendations are based on scientific evidence showing links between rent burden, affordable housing and health," said Kimberly Lipman, a lead author of the NYAM report.

Lipman noted that while the report's findings could be applied to other communities in New York and beyond, "it is important to remember that our review of scientific evidence was informed by feedback from hundreds of community members who attended public forums during the neighborhood planning process."

Brandon Kielbasa of Cooper Square Committee, an affordable housing advocacy organization, says the issue is as complex as it is prevalent.

"Tenants in gentrifying neighborhoods regularly face unhealthy housing conditions and intense psychological turmoil as they see vital resources, such as affordable housing, being depleted from their communities."

He adds that tenants also face unhealthy conditions during the actual process of converting apartments from affordable, rent-stabilized to luxury, market-rate.

"The physical act of converting affordable housing to luxury brings with it an unhealthy, unsafe and often toxic environment for tenants — especially for low to moderate income tenants who can't simply move to avoid being subjected to such harassing conditions," Kielbasa notes.

On such resident, Holly Slayton of 514 E. 12th St., related her story where tenants endured months of loud, hazardous construction that left many in her building sick.

"My daughter and I suffered months of respiratory infections, where our doctor told us to wear a dust mask in our own home," she said.

An expanded version of this story can be read by visiting metro.us.

"Our East Harlem Health Impact Assessment recommendations are based on scientific evidence showing links between rent burden, affordable housing and health."

New Jersey lawmakers approve gas tax hike

New Jersey legislators approved a 23-cent-per-gallon gas increase in the state Friday. The gas hike now goes to Gov. Chris Christie, who is expected to sign the measure, reports said.

The vote had been expected Wednesday, but was delayed until Friday, when the Democrat-led Senate and Assembly voted, 24-14 and 44-27, respectively, in favor of it.

Currently New Jersey has a 14.5-cent gas tax, the second-lowest in the country. The increase would give it the seventh highest gas tax nationwide at 37.5 cents. But the tax would still be lower than neighboring states.

As of Wednesday, the average price for gas in New Jersey was $2 per gallon. For comparison, New York State's average price at the pump was $2.43; the state has a 43-cent tax per gallon.

GETTY IMAGES

Pennsylvanians pays an average $2.35 per gallon, including the state's 51.4-cent tax per gallon.

The proposed hike will pay for transportation, including road, bridge and rail infrastructure.

It will also cut a number of other taxes, including the estate tax, which will be phased out by Jan. 1, 2018, and the state's 7 percent sales tax, which will drop three-eighths of a percentage point. CRISTABELLE TUMOLA

Train derailment injures dozens, disrupts service on Long Island Rail Road

A work train apparently failed to provide enough clearance for the passenger train to pass, New York's governor said.

A Long Island Rail Road passenger train derailed on Saturday near the community of New Hyde Park, New York, injuring as many as 29 people and halting service on the key transit line in both directions, railroad officials and police said.

Official details were not available on the precise circumstances of the incident, which occurred at about 9 p.m. Eastern when a passenger train struck a work train about 20 miles east of Manhattan, according to police.

It was not immediately clear if the work train was stationary at the time.

Nassau County Executive Ed Mangano told a news conference 29 people were treated in hospitals for nonlife-threatening injuries such as broken bones and concussions. Scores more were evaluated or treated at the scene for scrapes or bruises.

A statement from New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo, citing "early reports," put the number of injuries at 11, "none of which are considered to be serious."

According to Cuomo, the 12-car train was heading eastbound on the railroad's main line carrying about 600 passengers when the first three cars derailed a half mile east of the New Hyde Park Station.

Photos from the scene of the wreck posted on social media showed at least two of the derailed train cars leaning upright but askew and partly off the track.

People riding on the train told local media they saw sparks or fire outside the windows after the train, which had been moving at a normal speed, began shaking mildly, then more violently before striking something and coming to a halt.

The New Hyde Park stop is just east of the border with the New York City borough of Queens. The rail line, one of the busiest commuter routes into America's largest city, said the derailment had forced suspension of service in both directions.

Saturday's accident on Long Island comes nine days after a passenger train crashed into a terminal in Hoboken, New Jersey, a major commuter route from New York City's western suburbs. That crash killed one person and injured more than 100. REUTERS

German police make new raid in hunt for refugee planning attack

Police found several hundred grams of explosives in the apartment they raided.

German police commandos stormed an apartment in the eastern city of Chemnitz on Sunday and detained a man in connection with a hunt for a Syrian refugee suspected of planning a bomb attack.

"Nobody was injured and no shots were fired. We've taken the man into custody and we are questioning him now," said Tom Berhardt, spokesman for the Saxony state criminal investigation office.

Police found explosives in another apartment they raided in the city on Saturday but have been unable to track down the suspect, 22-year-old Jaber al-Bakr. Police saw him at the door of the apartment block before he slipped through their grasp.

Police evacuated the residential building and fired a warning shot before storming the first apartment only to find al-Bakr was not there, said Kathlen Zink, another official at the Saxony state criminal investigation office.

The German authorities have informed foreign security services about al-Bakr, Zink added. The Federal Prosecutor's Office said it was taking over the case.

"The overall picture of the investigation, in particular the amount of the explosive found, suggests that the person was planning to carry out an Islamist-motivated attack," a spokesman for the Federal Prosecutor's Office told broadcaster SWR.

The suspicion that a refugee was planning a bomb attack will prove unwelcome news for Chancellor Angela Merkel, whose conservatives have lost support to the far-right Alternative for Germany Party over her open-door migrants policy.

Merkel, who last month said she wished she could "turn back the time by many, many years" to better prepare for last year's influx of almost 1 million migrants, has yet to say whether she will seek a fourth term as chancellor in elections next year.

In July, Islamic State claimed responsibility for attacks on a train near Wuerzburg and at a music festival in Ansbach which wounded 20 people.

Despite deploying hundreds of officers, police have been unable to find al-Bakr.

"We must continue to assume that this person poses a danger," said Bernhardt.

Police earlier appealed to the public for any information on al-Bakr. They described him as wearing a black hooded top with a bright pattern on the front, and warned people to be careful of him.

Al-Bakr had been in Germany since last year and was officially recognized as a refugee, Bernhardt said. He was not previously known to police, who raided the first flat after a tip-off from the domestic intelligence service.

Fed's Fischer says job gains solid, expects growth to pick up

Job gains in the United States remain solid and growth should pick up in the second half of the year, Fed Vice Chair Stanley Fischer said on Sunday in remarks that indicate the central bank remains on track for a December rate increase.

The United States is "close to full employment," Fischer said in remarks prepared for delivery to the Group of 30, a panel of current and former central bankers, regulators and academic economists, during the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank.

"With solid gains in employment and household income and upbeat consumer sentiment," Fischer said, consumption spending "should continue to support growth over the second half of the year." The session was closed to the press, but Fischer's prepared remarks were released by the Fed ahead of his scheduled address.

The steady progress on jobs, continued growth and faith that inflation will rise towards the Fed's 2 percent target has set the stage for policymakers to increase rates in December as part of a gradual tightening of monetary policy.

Fischer said the decision not to increase rates in September was a "close call" done largely to allow further progress on jobs. At this point, he said, "there appears little risk of falling behind the curve in the near future,"

"Gradual increases in the federal funds rate will likely be sufficient to get monetary policy to a neutral stance over the next few years," Fischer said. REUTERS

SEX, SIGHS AND AUDIOTAPE

The vote is in November but many pundits are wondering if the decisive moments of this election are on us right now. Here are my three things to watch in what could be a pivotal week in politics.

1. BOOM GOES THE DYNAMITE

That smoky aroma is not from a fresh rack of celebratory ribs. That is the smell of a campaign on fire ... and not in a good way. The flames are billowing around Team Trump after the release of that audiotape of their guy chatting in explicit and vulgar terms about trying to seduce a married woman, and about women in general. It was 2005. Trump was newly married. And he issued a statement saying, "I apologize if anyone was offended." But just listen. The campaign is deploying extinguishers like there is no tomorrow because if they can't lower the heat, there may actually be no tomorrow. Climb the fire towers and watch the smoke. This news may hit the polls like gasoline on a Weber, and if so, Trump could be toast. If not, then maybe he really is fireproof.

2. BATTLE STATIONS

In case you haven't noticed, the country is shrinking fast. Forget the bright red and blue states. Trump and Clinton are spending more and more time in the places most likely to decide the race — the battlegrounds. This week, Ohio and Florida will get a ton of play. Watch for candidate photo ops with flood victims in the Sunshine State and with working class folks in the Rust Belt. Bonus points if you see a picture of both in a single snap!

3. YOUR BALLOT, COMRADE?

President Obama, who once mocked Mitt Romney for saying the Russians were a major threat, is now saying they really are. The White House is officially accusing Russia of trying to sway the U.S. election by hacking into the computers of political groups. The real question now, is: Have the hacking efforts been brought under control? Watch for reassurances this week to head off challenges to the election results.

Meet the Watch That Shook Up Switzerland

A watch that revolutionized timekeeping at a price equally as radical.

In the history of timepieces, few moments are more important than the creation of the world's first Piezo timepiece. First released to the public in 1969, the watch turned the entire industry on its head, ushering in a new era of timekeeping. It's this legacy that we're honoring with the Timemaster Watch, available only through Stauer at a price only we can offer.

Prior to Piezo watches, gravity-driven Swiss watches were the standard bearer of precision timekeeping. But all that changed when the first commercially available Piezo watch came onto the market.

The result of ten years of research and development by some of the world's top engineers, they discovered that when you squeeze a certain type of crystal, it generates a tiny electric current. And, if you pass electricity through the crystal, it vibrates at a precise frequency—exactly 32,768 times each second. When it came on the market, the Piezo watch was the most dependable timepiece available, accurate to 0.2 seconds per day. Today, it's still considered a spectacular advance in electrical engineering.

"It was like a magnum bullet shot at the most sensitive spot of the mechanical watch industry... Switzerland was terrified." Ariel Adams of A Blog to Watch.

With the Timemaster we've set one of the world's most important mechanical advances inside a decidedly masculine case. A handsome prodigy in rich leather and gold-finished stainless steel. The simplicity of the watch's case belies an ornately detailed dial, which reflects the prestige of this timepiece.

Call today to secure your own marvel of timekeeping history. Because we work directly with our own craftsman we're able to offer the Timemaster at a fraction of the price that many Piezo watches cost. But a watch like this doesn't come along every day. Call today before time runs out and they're gone.

Your satisfaction is 100% guaranteed. Spend some time with this engineering masterpiece risk-free for two months. If you're not convinced you got excellence for less, simply send it back within 60 days for a refund of the sale price (less S&P). But we're betting this timekeeping pioneer is a keeper.

Beyonce closes Formation Tour with a bang

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Six months, 16 countries, 49 shows and over $200 million in revenue later, Beyonce's Formation World Tour is done. The 35-year-old megastar pulled off a star-studded finale at New Jersey's MetLife Stadium on Friday night that included a debut of "Lemonade" single "6 Inch," where the singer was suspended in air and upside down!

Tennis great Serena Williams reprised her role as video vixen on stage, complete with sexy leotard, for "Sorry." After spitting his verse on "Freedom," rapper Kendrick Lamar joined Bey in her iconic splash pool. And given that he is the inspiration for most of the content in "Lemonade," it was only right that Beyonce's hubby, rapper Jay Z, joined her for "Drunk in Love." The couple flirted and kissed to a cheering crowd. Jay Z better not mess this up.

Robert De Niro takes on Trump

In a video to encourage voters to hit the polls this November, Robert De Niro had a few choice words about presidential candidate Donald Trump. OK, it was more than a few. In under 60 seconds, the 73-year-old actor managed to insult the Donald 12 times. Here is a list of the not-so-friendly descriptors he uses to describe the Republican nominee in his #VoteYourFuture PSA.

- Dog
- Pig
- Con
- Bulls— artist

the country

- Fool
- Bozo

But even these insults weren't as impassioned as De Niro declaring that he wants to punch Trump in the face. Following the release of the video, actor Jon Voight rushed to Trump's defense stating that he was ashamed of the "foul" words De Niro used against the tycoon and urged Republicans to rally behind Trump. Not likely.

Dr. Dre threatens to sue Sony

Dr. Dre clearly cares about his reputation. The music producer's legal team released a cease and desist letter to Sony pictures for Lifetime's "Surviving Compton: Dre, Suge & Michel'le," a biopic about R&B singer Michel'le and her relationship with the hip-hop mogul at the height of his music career reports TMZ.

Apparently trailers

for the film depict Dre as violently abusive and his is not happy about it. In the letter Dre denies abusing Michel'le, noting that she never received medical attention or alerted police about any abuse. He is threatening to sue the company if he is portrayed as an abuser in the made-for-TV film, which airs Oct. 15.

We'd like to hear Michel'le's take.

How to talk about dating on a date actually a form of flirting, so use it as an opportunity to build rapport with each other. Rather than getting offended or feeling unsure of yourself, take a playful tone in your response.

You might try something like, "Why? Is this date going so well that you want to know who else I'm dating already?" Or, "Well, I met you, didn't I?" You could even address the awkwardness by responding with something like, "Well, that's a weird question for a first date. Surely we have more in common than Match/Tinder/OkCupid!"

When you're teasing, keep in mind that tone and body language matter most to make it clear that you're poking fun with your response.

Transition off the topic quickly.

After teasing, re-engage by showing genuine interest in your match. Ask something you really want to know, so you shift the focus back to the connection you're creating. Ultimately, that is where online dating got the two of you!

Make sure you avoid the detour. The answer to this question has the power to derail a date. For example, reminding your date that you have other suitors can take the two of you out of the intimate space you're attempting to build. Or if you use it as an opportunity to gripe about the site or app where you met, it could force you further apart rather than closer together.

There's nothing more awkward than a date asking, "How is online dating going for you?" Cringe. Aren't we here to create new potential – not linger on the past? Yet still, people ask.

It happens because whatever site or app you met on is one thing you definitely have in common. It's a comfort zone. And sometimes dating can feel really outside of your comfort zone.

If your date retreats to the land of accidental awkwardness, here's how to handle the question.

Tease your date. Teasing is

Junior high is the pits

Rob Riggle talks about "Middle School: The Worst Years of My Life" and his own awful past.

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

Predictably enough, Rob Riggle isn't a terribly nice guy in "Middle School: The Worst Years of My Life." In the comedy, based on James Patterson's bestseller, the comic, actor and "Daily Show" alum plays one of the plagues upon our tween hero (Griffin Gluck): the new boyfriend of his doesn't like her kids too much. It's standard issue for Riggle, 46: "I play a nice character every now and then. But the majority are pretty jerky," he says.

We talked to Riggle about his own unhappy memories of junior high, and how they're responsible for making him the funnyman he is today.

Even when you play jerks, you manage to make them funny enough that they're basically oversized children. It makes them almost endearing. I think that's one reason [director] Steve Carr cast me. This character had to be a jerk, and it was written in such a way that if it wasn't played comedically it would have been very dark. I can do that: I can make jerks funny.

My junior high experiences were among the worst in my life. How was yours?

It was definitely the worst time. I was prepubescent. Everyone was turning into young adults. I was not. So everybody got bigger than me in junior high. I was the runt. When you're standing in a group of boys and they look around, they find the smallest guy real quick. They go, "What are you laughing at, roo?" You've got to run for your life or make up something to get them laughing.

So you had the squeaky high-pitched voice? [Laughs] I didn't even have that. Usually, you had to go through puberty to have a crackling voice. I was the last person in my class to go through puberty. It didn't happen to me until before my sophomore year in high school. Then it came in like a storm. I came back to school and people didn't recognize me. I got my braces off, I grew four inches, I cut my hair — it was good.

Being picked on, though, must have helped your gift for comedy.

Oh yeah, it was a defense mechanism. If I kept people laughing or kept them distracted, then they didn't want to pick on me. I consider being the smallest person in junior high a blessing, in a way. Not at the time, but afterward.

Sometimes failure and embarrassment and pain can be really helpful.

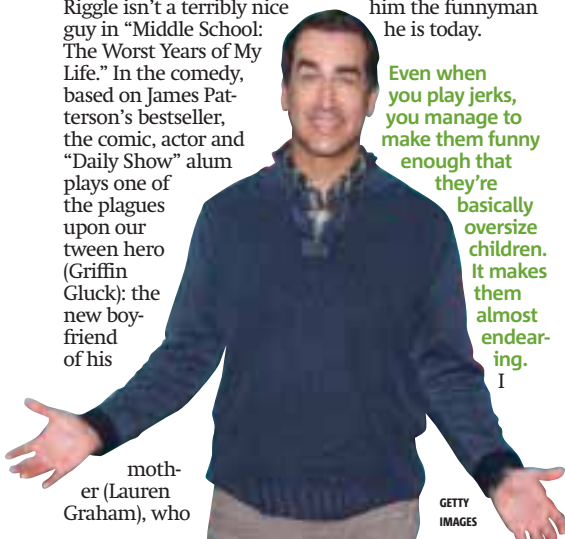

The only thing that makes a muscle grow is resistance. I think most of the greatest things I've learned and the biggest moments of my life have come through some failed attempt at something. If you get tested, if you get pushed, you find your character grows. You find out who you are and adapt and overcome. By the way, I am not advocating any kind of bullying. [Laughs]

Stand-up is surely one of the greatest tests of that: You get up and die on stage for years until you find your voice.

Yes. It's the loneliest plan on earth. [Laughs] But it makes you stronger!

Then stand-up comics must be the strongest people in the world. [Laughs] And probably the most psychologically damaged.

A coloring book of your childhood

"That's So '90s Pop!" is an ode to the era that won't make you cringe.

KATE MOONEY
kate.mooney@metro.us

You could make the case that the dream of the '90s is still alive for Patrick Sullivan, but not in a "Portlandia" way. It's more that he just likes '90s stuff. The 27-year-old Brooklyn-based graphic designer still bumps "C'est La Vie" by B*Witched and thinks Britney Spears is "carrying the torch" of the era (we agree).

While researching "That's So '90s Pop!" the adult "fill-in activity book" that he wrote and illustrated—essentially a coloring book, plus obscure facts, quizzes and wacky games, like a Kris Kross Kris crossword and Eminem fill-in-the-blank haiku—Sullivan took a deep dive into Reddit and online message boards, including one exclusively dedicated to Mandy Moore's early career as a national anthem singer in Orlando, Florida.

What results is a both tongue-in-cheek and sincere ode to the pop stars of the era, which the Long Island native refers to as "a kind of funhouse mirror of Seventeen magazine quizzes." It even comes with a Carson Daly cut-out mask, "so you can host your own countdown. (Nail polish not included.)"

Author Patrick Sullivan

While millennials may have reached peak '90s nostalgia, Sullivan's homage bypasses the kind of sentimentality we usually associate with BuzzFeed posts and events that just don't need to exist—lookin' at you, '90s Fest—and instead plays up what's fun or oddball from the time. On one page, you'll learn that Nelson Mandela once referred to the Spice Girls as his heroes; on the next, you'll look for the meaning of irony in an Alanis Morissette word search.

As a merchandising and apparel designer for the likes of Carly Rae Jepsen, Britney Spears and Queen Bey herself, the debut author is also firmly rooted in the pop culture of today.

That doesn't mean he didn't throw back with us over the phone when we discussed key '90s topics like how Brian from the Backstreet Boys is underrated and why one-hit wonder Irish girl group B*Witched is his cult favorite.

Adult coloring books are all the rage. Your book is a "fill-in activity book." How is it different?

As an artist myself, I wanted to take the drawing really seriously, but also to have this funny information as well and a bit more to do. I wanted it to be, if you were going to get it as a gift for someone, it [would] be a big package that had a lot to offer. When I was a kid, we would go to the beach and bring magazines about these people and take the quizzes, and I would draw on the pictures. I wanted it to have that vibe.

Who's your favorite '90s pop star?

There are the ones that shine bright and sort of live and die in the moment, and some that carry on forever. Britney's still carrying the torch. I think B*Witched is my favorite group that's sort of forgettable but also completely memorable at the same time. They just have that one song "C'est La Vie"—it was on the Disney channel original film "Smart House." It still might be my No. 1 party song.

Favorite '90s boy band member?

Ooh, JC Chasez [from *NSYNC], but that's currently, just because I feel like we'd get along. But when I was growing up, I remember feeling very alone in my love for Brian [Littrell] from the Backstreet Boys. No one cared [about him] and I thought he was way cuter than Justin Timberlake.

Why Knee And Hip Arthritis Pain Sufferers Are Flocking To This Manhattan Medical Clinic To Relieve Pain And Avoid Joint Replacement Surgery

Knee Arthritis Pain Breakthrough?

Real Doctor's Advice On The Most Advanced Medical Treatments For Knee Arthritis Pain

"The Knee Arthritis Treatment Everyone Is Talking About..."

By Matt Edgar
America's Health Writer

NYC - Modern medicine has come a long way.

The success stories and lives saved are endless.

And now, through advanced technology and science - skilled medical doctors are helping more knee and hip arthritis pain sufferers than ever before.

In just a moment, I'm going to reveal some of these incredible arthritis pain techniques...

So you can possibly relive some or all of your pain...

Just like thousands of others already have.

I bet many of these former arthritis pain sufferers were just like you.

But first, I have to tell you about this - it's very important information so you can make the very best decision about relieving your arthritis pain.

It will also help you avoid costly and painful mistakes.

Ready for some great arthritis pain relief information? Ok, here we go...

The Two Arthritis Treatment Paths...

The first thing to understand, is that there are basically two treatment paths you can choose to go down when you are looking for relief to knee or hip arthritis pain.

One path is non-surgical. You do not want surgery (who does!) so you do everything you can to avoid it.

You take pain pills, do physical therapy and exercises and maybe you even changed your diet.

Nothing worked. The pain progressively got worse until you couldn't stand it anymore.

Because you did not get the proper treatment - your joints decayed past the point of no return. Now they are basically "bone on bone" and the doctor told you there is no other option. You need...

The Dreaded...

joint replacement surgery.

I will admit - some people do need joint replacement surgery.

This procedure has come a very long way in recent years.

For some, at a certain point, this is the way to go.

But - and this is a very big but... even though this procedure has improved dramatically... it is not without risk.

In fact, a $500 million verdict in a lawsuit was just awarded to patients who received faulty hip implants during hip replacement surgery.

Some of the damage being reported from the faulty hip replacements sounds horrific.

There is no doubt, joint replacement surgery should be your last resort.

But too many people think they need joint replacement surgery when you do not.

In fact, many respond extremely well to a medical treatment approach that is finally becoming much more popular.

This is...

Treatment Path #2

This treatment path is non-surgical but it probably NOT what you are thinking.

rubbing and wear and tear and, in many cases, decreases or even eliminates pain.

Sounds Great Right?

It does But... viscosupplementation has not worked for many people.

There are two very important reasons why:

If you have knee or hip arthritis pain and want to relieve your pain without surgery - or if you have already tried viscosupplementation without good results - what you are about to discover will be extremely important...

medical camera and fluoroscopic imaging to guide the procedure and make sure the gel-like medicine gets exactly where you need it.

Many doctors doing this procedure do not use this advanced digital imaging and do these procedure either under ultrasound or "blind."

No Difference?

They say there is no difference - but research shows that doctors doing joint injections without being guided by the proper imaging completely miss the joint space about one third of the time.

cancel the surgery because they feel so much better.

They get such great results because they use advanced digital imaging (PATT) to guide their treatments, their doctors are specially trained and have performed THOUSANDS of treatments and they use multiple brands of lubricating gels (many doctors only use one they have a "relationship" with).

But that's not all - for difficult cases, they also add advanced PRP and Stem cell treatments with often wonderful results.

Every patient is unique and they have a very unique treatment plan for every single patient so you can get the best possible results in the shortest amount of time.

Here's How To Find Out If We Can Help You

If you have knee or hip arthritis pain and would like to find out if the treatments at NY Pain MD can help you - you can come in for a risk-free no-obligation screening. During this screening you will get a chance to ask questions and find out if you are a candidate for these advanced medical treatments - and what your best options are. The screening is completely free with no further obligation.

After your screening, you will breath a big sigh or relief knowing what your options are and the best way to deal with your pain.

If you are not sure - I know exactly how you feel. Arthritis pain is brutal. And it is hard to get straight answers.

So many patients felt the same way.

They told us they had given up until they read some information just like this and they came in to see us.

Then their life changed so fast - it was incredible

Give us a call right now at 855-456-PAIN and schedule your free screening.

The worst thing that can happened is you find out this treatment is not for you.

But what if we really can help you?

What if we really can get rid of some of all your pain?

What would that be worth you?

If it is worth a couple hours of your time - give us a call.

NYC PAIN MD

Why Is This Treatment In Such High Demand?

"Precision Arthritis Targeting" Technology

There are many big medical clinics in NYC. In fact, New York offers some of the best medical care in the world.

With so many great options - why are knee arthritis sufferers flocking to NY Pain Relief MD?

There are several reasons. The first is what we can "Precision Targeted Knee Pain Technology."

Here's what that means and why it is so important to you.

This treatment places a medical lubricating and cushioning gel directly into the arthritic knee joint. This helps the knee glide more smoothly decreasing or eliminating pain.

Precision Arthritis Targeted Technology Or PATT means that we use extremely advanced digital imaging to make sure this lubricating gel is placed precisely where it is supposed to go. This means treatments have the best chance for success.

Doing this procedure without this advanced technology often leads to misplaced lubricating gel and failure.

Another secret to success is using multiple treatments to maximize pain relief and healing. NY Pain MD uses multiple brands of lubricating gels and also offers stem cell therapy and platelet rich plasma (PRP). PRP is being used by top professional athletes in an attempt to heal injuries faster. The combination of these treatments can often get incredible results when other treatments have failed.

While many clinics only offer one of these treatments - NY Pain Relief MD offers them all under one roof for maximum results and convenience.

And just as important is the experience of NY Pain MD Relief doctors. NY Pain Relief MD doctors are experts at this procedure and have successfully done thousands.

It is NOT pain pills and grueling exercises. We think it is...

Much better

It is a treatment that actually puts vital lubricating gel directly into your arthritic knee or hip joint.

This is extremely important because when you have arthritis, you lose lubricating fluid in your joints.

In other words, your joints basically "dry up."

This causes joint surfaces to rub together causing all kinds of problems including brutal PAIN.

As time goes on - the joint wears out more and more and the pain can be excruciating.

The medical procedure I am speaking about is called...

viscosupplementation. During this procedure a FDA approved gel-like medicine is placed directly into the joint space.

This allows the joint to glide freely and move much better again.

This decreases the abnormal

The first reason some people did not get good results with viscosupplementation is... bluntly... this is a real medical procedure done by real medical doctors.

This is NOT a "wonder cure" sold by slick marketers.

In the real world of medicine and science, no treatments work 100% of the time or on everyone. And no good and ethical doctor would make such a claim or guarantee any results what-so-ever.

So, there are some people that will not get results with this treatment.

Reason #2

To assure the best possible results, this treatment requires expensive advanced technology and a skilled medical doctor with experience doing this procedure.

For this treatment to have the best chance to work, the lubricating gel must be placed precisely into the joint space. That's why "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or PATT is always used. PATT uses a special

And because treatments are so precise - most patients report they are also painless.

Now that you know the facts - would you choose a doctor who uses advanced digital imaging to guide the treatment - or one who injects you blind?

Can you see why this treatment has not worked for so many? And can you see why, with the Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology and a doctor who has already done thousands of these procedures - it could work for you?

That's why so many knee and hip arthritis sufferers are flocking to a medical clinic in NYC called "NY Pain Relief MD" that focusses on helping patients relieve their knee and hip arthritis pain and get back to doing all the things they want to do - like playing golf, walking without pain, tennis and many others.

But one of the biggest successes is when patients who were told they needed joint replacement surgery

3 Things we saw as the Jets faltered against the high-powered Steelers

The 1-4 Jets are in a deep hole after an ugly Week 5 loss in Pittsburgh.

TONY WILLIAMS
sports@metro.us

The Jets entered their Week 5 matchup with a plethora of secondary issues, and it was further exploited by the Steelers' aerial attack in a 31-13 defeat.

Ben Roethlisberger was his usual stellar self tossing four touchdowns en route to a 34-of-47, 380-yard afternoon against a Jets secondary that was already struggling and looked even worse without the services of the injured Darrelle Revis. The future Hall of Famer and Pittsburgh native missed the game due to a lingering hamstring injury, but the way Roethlisberger was slinging the ball around the field, it probably wouldn't have mattered if Revis was available.

The Steelers (4-1) used four long scoring drives of at least 75 yards to run the Jets (1-4) ragged, particularly late when Pittsburgh was nursing a two-possession lead and in their time-consuming four-minute offense.

New York just didn't have any answers for the black and gold, as its impressive first half gave way to a very unproductive — and scoreless — second half.

Here's a look at what happened, as the Jets' season is in peril:

1 Primary problems in the secondary

Roethlisberger and company had their ways with the Jets secondary, as the quarterback connected with six different receivers. At one point in time, Roethlisberger had 14 straight completions, essentially salting away the game late — following a peculiar decision from Todd Bowles to eschew a short fourth-down attempt near midfield and down two possessions and punt midway through the final stanza. Big Ben's favorite target was of course Antonio Brown, who snared nine receptions for 78 yards and a touchdown — including a no-frills reaction on the score. Sammie Coates remained Roethlisberger's most beloved big-play target, though, with a game-high 139 yards on six catches (11 targets) and two touchdowns. Running back Le'Veon Bell wasn't to be outdone, as he matched the starting wideouts with 11 targets of his own en route to a nine-catch, 98-yard afternoon. The Jets secondary has been under siege all season, as the 71 percent completion rate to opposing quarterbacks can attest — and Roethlisberger one-upped that with a 72 percent rate.

2 No rush at all

Roethlisberger was clean for most of the game, and had too much time to pick and choose his targets, as the Jets could only muster one sack. It's been a surprising and quizzical decline in the pass rush department for a Jets front seven that entered the game with 11 sacks. But seven of those sacks came in the opener and there have only been five since. It's a perilous combination for a Jets defense that has had problems covering in the secondary, because if the pass rush can't help cover their warts, it's going to continue to be a long and ugly season for Gang Green.

Gang Green notes

Brandon Bostic registered the first Jets reception by a tight end at the 10:10 mark of the first quarter — in the fifth game of the season.

3 Dropsies

For once, Ryan Fitzpatrick wasn't the primary reason for a defeat, as he went 25-of-38 for 255 yards and a touchdown — and no interceptions. He was sacked three times and when he did have time to throw, he didn't get much help from his supporting cast. Even wideout Brandon Marshall, who had a great statistical game with eight catches for 114 yards and a touchdown, had his issues at times, botching three of his 15 targets — accounting for a game-high three drops. The Jets entered the game with nine drops, which was the third in the league, and helped that stat go up with a rough day in Pittsburgh.

Pretty much as expected, Tom Brady went crazy in his return to the NFL Sunday in Cleveland. GETTY IMAGES

NFL Roundup: Tom Brady makes impressive return, Eagles falter late

There was a lot of great quarterback play in Week 5.

LUKE MILLER
@LukeFM7
sports@metro.us

A handful of one-sided affairs characterized the early games in Week 5. Here's a look around the league at some of the action you might have missed Sunday:

Detroit 24 Philadelphia 23
Carson Wentz' (25-for-33, 2 TD, INT) first interception of the season killed the Eagles' (3-1) final drive almost before it started, and their comeback bid stalled out against the Lions (2-3). Matthew Stafford (19/25, 180, 3 TD) found Theo Riddick twice in the end zone in the first quarter to forge a 14-0 lead before the Eagles went on a 23-7 run to take the lead. A 29-yard Matt Prater field goal put the Lions ahead for good before Darius Slay's interception sealed the win.

Washington 16 Baltimore 10
Washington (3-2) won their third in a row and handed the Ravens (3-2) their second straight defeat at home by stopping Joe Flacco (30-for-46, 210, TD) and letting Terrance West (95 yards rushing) do what damage he could on just 11 carries.

Indianapolis 29 Chicago 23
Two teams that entered the game with just two wins between them combined for 918 yards of total offense as Andrew Luck (28-for-39 322, 2 TD) and Brian Hoyer (33-for-43, 397, 2 TD) engaged in an unlikely aerial duel. Jordan Howard added 118 yards on the ground and scored on a 21-yard reception to put the Bears (1-4) ahead. But Luck had his favorite target T.Y. Hilton (10 rec, 171 yards, TD) to put the Colts (2-3) on top for good.

Tennessee 30 Miami 17
Marcus Mariota (20-for-29, 163, 3 TD) rebounded from two weeks with no touchdowns and the Titans (2-3) ran for 235 yards to roll over a Dolphins (1-4) team that was once again toothless on offense, managing just 200 total yards. Jakeem

Grant had a 74-yard punt return touchdown for the Dolphins' first score.

Minnesota 31 Houston 13
The Texans (3-2) and Brock Osweiler (19-for-42, 184, TD, INT) were the latest victims of the Vikings (5-0) defense. Marcus Sherels got the Vikings special teams on board before the Texans offense with a 79-yard punt return touchdown, his second on the season. Sam Bradford (22-for-30, 271, 2 TD) had his fourth straight game without an interception.

Pittsburgh 31 New York Jets 13
Ben Roethlisberger (34-for-47, 380, 4 TD) and the Steelers (4-1) offense continued their tour of vengeance around the NFL. Sammie Coates scored two touchdowns, the first a 72-yard bomb for Pittsburgh's first score of the day. The Jets (1-4) finally kicked the turnover bug, but were no match for the Steelers. Brandon Marshall scored their only touchdown. Le'Veon Bell had over 150 total yards for the second consecutive week.

Aries Take the initiative and do something that will get your energy flowing. Exercise and a nutritious diet will be key. Romance is encouraged.

Taurus Listen attentively and be objective, but in the end, do what you know in your heart is right for you. You will learn a lot from talking to others.

Gemini Keep your thoughts to yourself and avoid critical people. Look for ways to bring about positive change to your community or surrounding environment.

Cancer Plan to make constructive changes at home. Expanding a space to invite friends over for an entertaining afternoon will result in an interesting encounter.

Leo Focus on what's important to you. Arguing will be a waste of time. Channel your energy into helping others and furthering your own advancement.

Virgo Speak up and share your ideas. Expect to face opposition from someone who demands more of your time. Be prepared to adjust your schedule.

Libra Taking a trip or making plans with a loved one will have its challenges, but could also lead to a memorable experience. Don't be afraid to try something new.

Scorpio A proposal will come your way. Weigh the pros and cons and set your sights on initiating the groundwork. Your input will be valued.

Sagittarius Information you receive may sound amazing, but with a little research you'll be disappointed. You are best off working alone toward a goal.

Capricorn Your ideas will be well-received. Participating in causes that concern you will be emotionally draining, but also satisfying. Don't be afraid to use unusual methods.

Aquarius Make home improvements and search for your next project. Preparing a perfect space to enjoy with the people you love will bring you closer together.

Pisces Be careful how you handle others. Someone is likely to balk at your suggestions. Offer incentives if you want everyone to join your quest. EUGENIA LAST
